Charlie Fellowes has picked up the silver medal on each of his last three starts and although he sets the standard, he is seemingly vulnerable for win purposes. It might be worth siding with BEECHWOOD DONNA, who won impressively at this venue on debut and ran well here on her penultimate outing too. Pivoting took a step in the right direction when second over C&D latest and is another to note.

NAAMOOS ran a race full of promise when runner-up over this trip on debut at Wolverhampton and is entitled to come on for the outing and take closer order now he has the benefit of the run behind him. Penalised Musselburgh scorer Bulls Aye is feared most, though a big run could also be on the cards from Fae The Port, who was fourth behind Bulls Aye on debut in Scotland and should be wiser for the experience gained.

The return to Beverley could spark an improved showing from HARRY LOVE, who struck over C&D off 3lb lower in August before running below his best over 1m at Musselburgh. There are plenty of dangers in opposition, however, and Fred, who was ahead of the selection when second in Scotland, appears the pick of them. Harbour Vision is a model of consistency, Markazi commands respect now eased in grade, while the likes of Idoapologise and Kentuckyconnection arrive in good order too.

At the age of 11, Caspian Prince lowered the track record when landing a handicap at Yarmouth last week and Mick Appleby's thriving veteran commands respect on these terms as he bids to notch a double. Preference, though, is for ALJADY, who sauntered to an easy victory at Sandown last time and rates the one to beat at the weights. Ornate has taken on some tough assignments this term but is another pace angle in the race to consider.

UNDERCOVER BROTHER is expected to run a big race here. Les Eyre's charge has been in cracking form on the all-weather, he was touched off on his latest visit to the East Yorkshire track in June, and is well drawn in stall five. Royal Brave went close at Musselburgh last time and is likely to be in the mix again, while Gamesome also merits shortlist inclusion.

WILLIAM ALEXANDER impressively won an apprentice race under Gavin Ashton over C&D last week and with Ashton now able to use his claim, he is fancied to follow up. Casilli has an attractive, unexposed profile and merits consideration lining up off the same mark as when third on her handicap debut at Wolverhampton. Stone Mason, second behind the selection latest, also has a chance.

VALYRIAN STEEL overcame a slow start to make a winning debut over 1m2f at Newcastle and with that experience under his belt, he looks like the one they all have to beat in this contest. Second at Newcastle was Wise Glory, who has won twice since and is now rated 84, so the form is solid. Ayr runner-up Ricksen and Al Khabeer, who wears cheekpieces for the first time, might be left to fight it out for minor honours.

CONTRAST has been narrowly beaten on his last couple of starts, including over C&D in July, and he could notch a deserved win under Paul Mulrennan. Double Reflection was touched off at Chelmsford last week and must enter calculations on her turf return, while Corked and Dangeroffizz are others to note in what looks a tricky puzzle for punters to solve.
